

DIFFERENT FINANCIAL VIEWS.

The surplus of eighty or ninety millions of dollars, which the present Administration found in the Treasury, has disappeared and fears are entertained that the next Congress will have to provide for a deficit instead of having a surplus to dispose of. Allusion to the subject brought Director Leach, of the Mint, to the front, or rather, Mr. Leach, who has nothing to do with the financial affairs of the Treasury Department, took occasion to bring himself to the front in connection with the matter. With a great flourish of trumpets he tells the people, what the public debt statement shows, that there is a certain amount of money in the public Treasury and that he holds that $258,000,000 of the amount is available for legitimate expenditures of the Government.

Secretary Foster, who is at the head of the Treasury Department, when questioned about the statement of Mint Director Leach, expressed the opinion that what Mr. Leach considered available cash might be regarded as trust funds. He believed, however, that subsidiary silver coins, trade dollars, bullion, current cash and silver against which no certificates have been issued, in all about $70,000,000, is available for Government expenditures. This is about $188,000,000 less than the Director of the Mint had it, but in these days of billion dollar appropriations that is considered a trifling difference.

The Secretary does not agree with the Director that the silver purchased under the act of July last, against which certificates are issued, is available cash. The certificates are against the silver, and it is in the nature of a trust, but the profit on the silver purchased, which amounts to $4,000,000, may be used.

A man with more brains and less brass than the Director of the Mint, would feel humiliated at the rebuke administered to him by the Secretary for meddling with what he evidently knew nothing about, but the Director is not the least abashed, as he felt it to be the duty of a man holding a fat office to say something to help the party.

A QUESTION OF FLAGS.

The Bersaglieri, an Italian military organization of Sacramento, volunteered to participate in the Presidential procession in that city. The company has two flags, the American and the Italian, the latter being the colors of the company. The regulations of the company require that its colors shall always be carried in parades, but the American flag is borne on the right of the column, the place of honor. The company has heretofore paraded on the Fourth of July, Memorial Day and Washington's Birthday, carrying both flags, without causing comment, but on the present occasion they were informed by the Marshal of the day that they should carry no flag but the stars and stripes. The Captain of the company appealed to Mayor Comstock and the Executive Committee without avail, as they sustained the order of the Marshal, and the company decided to parade.

The Bersaglieri cannot understand why they should not be permitted to carry their colors on the present occasion as heretofore, and the restraining order of the Marshal has created much feeling in Italian circles, and the inquiry is made "if the President is greater than the Fourth of July?"

It does not seem exactly right to leave it to the discretion of whoever may be appointed Marshal of the day, whether military companies shall be permitted to carry private flags in public parades. There ought to be State regulations prohibiting all military organizations from carrying any flag in general processions, or on National holidays, save and except the stars and stripes. Then there could be no misunderstanding on the subject, and the Bersaglieri and similar organizations would know, without consulting Marshals of the day, what colors they would have to carry.

The Northwestern Financier says: There are hundreds of artesian wells in the San Louis Valley, Colorado, the largest with a capacity to irrigate 320 acres of land. The smaller ones will furnish water for house and stock and irrigate a small garden tract. With an artesian well the farmer has no use for a wind mill to pump water.

The Illinois State Board of Health has decided to recognize no foreign medical diploma that does not confer upon its possessor the right to practice medicine in the country in which it was granted. Statistics show that 29 per cent. of the university graduates in foreign institutions were rejected and many of them came to this country to practice.

Cardinal Manning has written a letter, in which he again attacks the Parnell faction of the Irish National party. He denounces their action during the recent electoral contests in Ireland, in Parliament and elsewhere as being not only suicidal, but such as to constitute one of the greatest blows ever delivered against the rising hopes of Ireland.

In some of the States the law makers allow themselves a certain number of postage stamps and then pay hotel and whisky bills with the stamps. But here in the wild and woolly West it is considered undignified to pay for the drinks with postage stamps, so the saloons appropriate coin for stationery.

THE PRESIDENT ENTERTAINED.

Ex-Senator Delamater in Trouble—Ex-Secretary of War Taft Dying—California Crop Report.

The President Entertained by the Union League Club.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2.—President Harrison was given a reception at the Union League Club in this city to-night. About 600 guests were present. The floral decorations were very beautiful, and banks of roses were to be seen everywhere. Postmaster General Wauamaker was presented with a floral letter, and Secretary Rusk with a floral plow. The officers of the National Guard were present by special invitation.

At the close of the reception at the Union League Club to-night the President was presented with a solid gold plate, fac simile of the card of invitation, beautifully enameled with a crest of the State of California and flag of the Union. In accepting it the President said: California is full of ambuscades, not of a hostile sort, but with all the embarrassments that attend a surprise. In a hasty drive this afternoon when I thought I was to visit Oakland, I was suddenly drawn up in front of a college and asked to make an address, and a moment afterwards before an asylum for deaf, dumb and blind, the character of which I did not know until the carriage stopped in front of it. All this taxes the ingenuity, as your kindness moves the heart of one who is making a hurried journey through California. I do not need such souvenirs as this to keep fresh in my heart this visit to your State. It will be pleasant, however, to show to others who have not participated in this enjoyment, this record of a trip that has been very eventful, and one of perpetual sunshine and happiness. I do not think I could have endured the labor and toil of travel unless I had been borne up by the inspiring and hearty good will of your people. I do not know what collapse is in store for me when it is withdrawn. I fear I shall need a vigorous tonic to keep up to the high level of enjoyment and inspiration which your kind treatment has given me. I thank you for this pleasant social enjoyment and this souvenir of it.

Opening of the Naval Exhibition.

LONDON, May 2.—The naval exhibition of the Chelsea embankment opened to-day with great ceremony. The Prince of Wales presided at the opening ceremonies. He wore the uniform of an Admiral of the British Navy. The entire passageway, one-eighth of a mile long, leading to the spot from which the Prince of Wales declared the exhibition open, was lined by celebrated naval and military officers, to the rear of whom a strong force of Blue Jackets and marines presented arms as the royal party passed. The Prince and Princess of Wales were conducted to the Dais, after which the Archbishop of Canterbury came forward and uttered a prayer for the success of the exhibition, the peace and prosperity of the country and the health of the royal family. The Prince of Wales then replied to the address of the officers, after which the Princess of Wales turned a tiny switch in front of a miniature model of the Eddystone light house. There was a flash from the top of the light house and the exhibition was formally declared open.

The exhibition covers an area of over fifteen acres. A model of the Eddystone light house is lighted by electricity to the extent of half a million candle power. A feature of the exhibition is a full-sized model of Nelson's famous flag-ship "Victory," furnished throughout with guns and accoutrements of Nelson's day. On the lake it is proposed to give each day a mimic naval battle between miniature iron clad men-of-war, including torpedo attacks, submarine mining fireworks, etc. In the arena sailors will give exhibition drills, and the handling of naval machine guns will be shown.

The exhibition gallery is divided into nine galleries, each named after some celebrated sailor. There are interesting collections of old naval relics, and relics of various arctic exhibitions. The art section contains the finest collection of naval pictures ever brought together.

Delamater & Co. Fail to Settle.
Special to the Journal.

MEADVILLE, Pa., May 2.—The proposition of Delamater & Co. to settle with their creditors on a 50 per cent. basis has fallen through. Ex Senator Delamater to-day stated that the terms of the proposition had not been complied with, and friends who had proposed to assist him in making the first payment would not consent to have the time for securing the signatures of the remainder of the creditors extended. Members of the firm of Delamater & Co. were arrested on complaint of a small deposition this evening and bail was furnished in the sum of $300 each. It is rumored that an attempt will be made by repeated arrests, to exhaust the bail and finally get the ex-Senator into jail.

The Crop Report.
Special to the Journal.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The weather crop bulletin says: The weather during the past week has been specially favorable for all growing crops throughout the grain regions of the northwest and central valleys. California reports high winds and hot weather which damaged the wheat crops materially in the latter part of the week. Frost in the coast counties has slightly damaged the fruit prospects. Haying is in progress in Southern California. Prospects are good. Orange and lemon trees are blooming well, they were late starting but promise well.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other."

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it. Mrs. ELLA A. GORR, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

VERDI NOTES.

Items of Interest From Up the River.
VERDI, Nev., May 2, 1891.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—Mr. Thompson, who was stabbed last Sunday evening, is improving, and his physician says he is out of danger. Everyone hopes there will not be another such a drag-out and knock-down scrape in Verdi again. While it is not advisable to encourage the use of a knife for self-defense, it is high time that the fighting element in and about Verdi should understand that the first law of nature, self-defense, is recognized in the State of Nevada.

Joe J. Martell of Reno has just completed the masonry work of a slaughter-house for Mr. Jackson, our meat dealer. THATCHER'S MINSTRELS.

Will Appear at McKissick's Opera House Sunday Evening, May 10th.

Owing to a misunderstanding on the part of the management of George Thatcher's minstrels, Messrs. Thatcher, Rich and Harris, regarding the time of the arrival of the company at Reno, it is necessary in order to fulfill their contracts on the Nevada circuit, to change the date here from the original one, Friday, May 8, to Sunday evening, May 10th. It was their understanding when the contracts were signed, that they could reach Reno at 4:35 p. m. on Friday, but now find they cannot arrive until 11:50 Friday night, too late for a performance, and as they are contracted to appear in Virginia City Saturday evening, it becomes necessary to play Reno on Sunday evening or cancel their appearance here.

While they deplore very much the necessity of giving a Sunday night performance they trust the Reno public will, by this statement of facts, which cause the step, regard their action in the spirit in which it is made, to fulfill all contracts to the letter. Such action being necessary to not disappoint the people of Reno in seeing this superb company and their favorite singer "Dick Jones."

SAVAGERY.

A Squaw Suspected of Being a Witch Cut to Pieces.

A correspondent of the JOURNAL writes that the Putes near Lovelocks killed a squaw known as Carson Charley's wife last Thursday. They first knocked her on the head with a hatchet and cut her throat. Then they cut the body in pieces, which they put in barley sacks and carried off to the mountains. The Indians suspected the woman was a witch, and they accused her of causing sickness in the tribe. The relatives of the sick having decided that Charley's wife had bewitched them, butchered her as described, in accordance with the custom of the tribe.

Several instances of this character are known to have taken place in Nevada since its settlement by the whites, but the authorities rarely interfere. Perhaps if the method adopted by the Governor of Massachusetts in Colonial days to prevent the hanging and burning of witches was introduced among the Indians it might have a beneficial effect. It was to punish the accused and accuser exactly alike. Make an Indian understand that if he accuses another of being a witch, and the witch is killed, he will suffer the same penalty, and such butcheries as that at Lovelocks will cease.

THE DEEPEST WELL.

It Is Being Bored in Pennsylvania.

Some months ago the Wheeling Development Company began drilling a well near Wheeling, Pennsylvania, in search of oil or gas, and it determined to bore as far as possible. The Press says the hole has already reached the depth of 4,100 feet, within 500 feet of the deepest well in the world. In this distance a dozen of thick veins of coal have been passed, oil and gas both struck, but not in paying quantities, and gold quartz, iron and many other minerals found. The hole is eight inches in diameter, and the largest in diameter of any deep well in the world.

Professor White, State Geologist, was sent to Washington, where he succeeded in getting the Government Geological Survey officers interested in the exploration, and the result is that the hole will be drilled to a depth of one mile. Then the Government will take up the work under the direction of two expert officers of the Geological Survey and drill into the earth as far as human skill can penetrate.

The idea is to take the temperature and magnetic conditions as far as possible, and by means of an instrument constructed for the purpose, a complete record of the progress and all discoveries made will be kept and will be placed in the Geological Survey exhibit at the World's Fair.

SUBTERRANEAN IRRIGATION.

What a Correspondent Says of the System.

The Belmont Courier publishes the following from a correspondent. As attention has heretofore been directed to the method of irrigation which it describes, and it has not been adopted to any great extent, it is doubtful if it is as beneficial as the correspondent believes it to be, but here is what he says:

"Do you get any rain or snow in Nevada at any season? If so I declare it is the most practicable thing in the world to secure for each land owner a few acres of land so fertile and productive that each acre will be worth five in any other country under common methods. Sub-irrigation must be your salvation. A ditch out across a decline so as to catch all the water above and store it for use as needed will fertilize all the land below, more and more, year by year. It is called the Cole system and is practicable in many parts of the nation. It is probable that you get much more water every year than is needed, but not at the right season. A very little suffices, if properly distributed, at the right time. Just let anyone try this wherever a little water falls yearly and behold the effect in the soil below the ditch. It is marvelous, and must redeem Nevada some day and make her a rich, agricultural State. Time will force most of the Western States into the adoption of this system. This is observed by many practical agriculturists. Let one man adopt it and others will follow his example."

Kraus, Dr. John A. Lewis, W. O. H. Martin, J. N. Evans, W. H. McLaughlin, T. K. Hyman and Sol Levy. A meeting of this committee is called for Monday at 3 p. m. at the office of Dr. Lewis in the bank building.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited, and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring-time or, in fact, at any time, and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

Miss Mamie Sweeney, Grand President of the Young Ladies' Institute of California, organized a branch of that order, Y. L. I. No. 23, last Thursday evening. The lodge started with a membership of nineteen. Following are the names of the officers elected for the ensuing term: President, Mrs. J. H. McCormack; First Vice President Mrs. P. L. Flannigan; Second Vice President, Mrs. Wm. Webster, Jr.; Marshal, Miss Nellie Madden, Examining Physician, Dr. Phillips; Board of Directors, Mrs. Peter Burke, Mrs. Chas. Gulling, Miss Mary Henry, Miss Lida Savage and Miss Mae Griffin. After the installation of officers a sumptuous banquet was partaken of by all the members.

Charles Strauss was driving a six-horse team loaded with quartz from the Snell mine to Thompson's mill Friday afternoon. The Enterprise says while rounding a curve in the road the wheels on one side of the wagon ran into a soft spot in such a way as to cause it to be turned completely over. Strauss jumped to save himself, but unfortunately was caught and buried by the wagon and its load. About fifty men, with blocks of timber, jack-screws etc., got to work, but it was over an hour before they succeeded in finding the body of Strauss, which was mangled beyond recognition. He had been buried under about three tons of rock in addition to the heavy wagon.

Preaching at Verdi.

There will be religious service at the school house at Verdi to-morrow (Sunday), at 7:30 p. m., Rev. T. P. Bradshaw officiating, to which all are invited.

A man who has practiced medicine for 40 years, ought to know salt from sugar; read what he says:

Toledo, O., Jan. 10, 1887.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co.—Gentlemen:—I have been in the general practice of medicine for more than 40 years, and would say that in all my practice and experience have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as I can Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take it according to directions. Yours truly,

L. L. Gonsuch, M. D.,

Office, 215 Summit St.,

We will give $100 for any case of catarrh that cannot be cured with Hall's Catarrh Cure. Taken internally.

An Elevated Railroad Episode.
She was a Normal college girl, and she decided to take the Sixth avenue elevated railroad up town. Being in haste, she carried her coin in her mouth, that she might lose no time at the ticket window. When she reached the ticket window she swallowed the coin and several people missed several trains while she coughed it up again. When her ticket was deposited she discovered herself to be on the down town side. She was in a hurry, and she gritted her teeth and ran down stairs. Then she got rattled, crossed Twenty-third street instead of crossing the avenue and, mounting, found herself where she had been before.
She stuck her tongue out at the gate-man and started again. As she crossed Sixth avenue the gateman on the down town side called to the gateman on the up town side that a crazy girl was coming. She came. She was a good deal out of breath, and she stuffed a $5 bill through the window. As a train drew up she swept together her change, mostly silver, flung it into the ticket box, and, firmly grasping her ticket, dashed for a place. The gateman dragged her back, but she did not believe him. Then, while the station telegraphed to the central office for instructions, she sat and made faces at the gateman over the way. And the gateman on the down town side called to the gateman on the up town side: "Are you going to the ball this evening?"
And the gateman on the up town side called to the gateman on the down town side: "Not this evening."—New York Sun.

Cured of a Superstition.
Speaking of superstitions among sick people a hospital physician said: "Upon one occasion one of the convalescents was sitting near the window when he observed a small dog barking furiously while running along the ground directly underneath. Suddenly the animal stopped, and looking upward began to sniff the air and then commenced digging in the earth at a furious rate and keeping up an incessant whining. The patient called an attendant and told her that he wished to be put back to bed, as the time was fast approaching for his demise. The nurse remonstrated and tried to laugh the man out of the absurd notion, but it was without avail, and the patient had his wish granted and for several days grew rapidly worse.
"I inquired into the cause, and upon being told tried to make the man see how foolish it was to relinquish all hold he had upon life. But the idea had such a firm hold upon him that I was finally obliged to resort to extreme measures, and threatened to send him into the streets to die if he was not better in three days. As I anticipated, the dread of dying upon a public highway counteracted the effect of the presentiment, and within the allotted time the patient improved wonderfully, and was afterward discharged a cured man—cured, as he afterward told me, of both his ailment and his superstitions."—Chicago News.

Louis the Eighteenth and Talleyrand.
The duties of my position kept me in Paris and made it impossible for me to go and meet Louis XVIII. I saw him for the first time at Compiegne. He was in his study—M. de Duras brought me to it. The king on seeing me held out his hand and said to me in the most amiable—nay, the most affectionate—manner: "I am very glad to see you; both our houses date from the same epoch. My ancestors were more clever than yours; had it been the reverse, you would say to me today, 'Take a chair, come here near me, let us speak of our affairs'; whereas today it is I who say to you, 'Sit down and let us talk.'"
I very soon did my uncle, the archbishop of Rheims, the pleasure of repeating to him the compliments paid by the king to our family. I repeated them the same evening to the emperor of Russia, who was at Compiegne, and who with much kindness asked me if I was satisfied with the king. These were his own words. I have not been weak enough to relate the opening of this interview to any other person.—Talleyrand's Memoirs in Century.

A New Reading System for the Blind.
A new method of teaching the blind to write has been invented by a French lady residing in Angers. For some years Mlle. Mulot has been doing all in her power to alleviate the sufferings of those who have been deprived of eyesight. Mlle. Mulot has been three years in bringing her new method to perfection. The system is a very simple one. A small album of 5 by 4 inches, having two brass gratings at the corners, contains all the arrangements necessary, and the writing is done by a hard pencil upon soft paper. The letters taught are Roman in character and very angular or square in outline. Of course each letter is separate, which makes it very easy to read.—New York Journal.
